PENFOLDS CELLAR SELECTION

“Penfolds has always understood, right from the time Dr Penfold purchased his estate at Magill in 1844, that great wine is made in the vineyard. Even the most skilled winemaker must rely on the quality of the fruit they receive to achieve greatness and Penfolds’ viticulturists have always been committed to providing our winemakers with the best possible raw materials.”

“The house style at Penfolds embraces the concepts of multi-regional blending, optimum fruit quality, the use of fine-grained American (and increasingly French) oak and most often, barrel fermentation and maturation. It was whilst developing Grange that Max Schubert observed that using Shiraz from two specific vineyards would result in an improved, all-round wine. Without the constraints of a single vineyard, Penfolds winemakers continue to choose the best possible fruit, showcasing the outstanding characteristics of each vineyard.” (Penfolds Pocket Guide)
